Management Discussion of Performance

Results of Operations

The NEI Global Sustainable Balanced Fund's Series A units returned -7.9% for the six months ended March 31, 2022 compared with a return of -2.6% for the benchmark explained below.

Unlike the benchmark return, the Fund's returns are after the deduction of fees and expenses paid by the Fund. Performance differences between series of units are mainly attributable to management fees charged to each series. Refer to the Past Performance section for the details of returns by series.

The blended benchmark is composed of 60% MSCI ACWI NR Index (C$) and 40% Bloomberg Barclays U.S. Aggregate Index (C$ hedged).

The Fund's net asset value increased by 5.64% during the period, from $278,356,018 as at September 30, 2021 to $294,067,803 as at March 31, 2022. This change in net assets is attributed to net unitholder activity of $39,868,695 and -$24,156,910 to investment operations, including market appreciation (depreciation), income and expenses.

Factors That Have Affected Performance

During the period, the yield curve flattened as there were multiple concerns at play including the emergence of the Omicron variant, the war in Ukraine and major monetary policy news from the Federal Reserve ("Fed"). The Fed announced the beginning of their balance sheet tapering and implemented its first interest rate increase since 2018. At the March Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) policy meeting, the committee raised the Federal Funds rate by 25 basis points, projected a steeper path to interest rate hikes and released an updated Summary of Economic Projections that showed higher short-term inflation and lower short-term economic growth. This monetary policy news and economic projections resulted in a flattening yield curve as short-term yields surged while long-term yields climbed to a lesser extent due to concerns around higher inflation and lower economic growth.

On the fixed income side, the primary detractor to performance was an underweight to US Treasuries. Treasuries posted negative returns but performed relatively well compared with other areas of the fixed income market. Credit sectors produced higher negative return and experienced credit spread widening.

Conversely, the Fund benefited from issuer selection and its allocation to government-related securities as well as an allocation to Asset Backed Securities (ABS). Within the government-related portion of the Fund, the supranational holdings performed well due to their shorter duration positioning and higher quality credit ratings. Similar to supranational securities, ABS in the Fund are mostly shorter-dated securities and contributed to relative performance because they were impacted less from rising interest rates. The Fund's lack of Energy sector exposure was a contributor to relative performance, which in a period of rising energy prices was unusual. Many Barcap Index energy holdings are large multinational energy companies that chose to divest from Russia, and as a result, had to write down billions of dollars. This offset the benefit of rising energy prices.

On the equity side, the Fund is overweight Industrials, Utilities, Materials and consistently underweight Energy, Financials and Communication Services (no exposure). The main driver of relative underperformance during the period was the sharp rotation in which value stocks (primarily commodity-linked) outperformed quality and growth significantly.

Stock selection has been the largest detractor as names that performed well at the end of the year have been derated and profit taking occurred in quality growth names perceived to be more expensive, particularly in Information Technology and Industrials. Materials holdings, which are primarily specialty chemicals and packaging stocks, not metals and mining, and Health Care holdings were negatively impacted on fears that COVID-19 related revenues would abate. Company specific inflation concerns also impacted performance. Autodesk Inc. (Digital Infrastructure, US) benefits from rising infrastructure spending, however, came under pressure as supply chain issues and staff shortages negatively impacted the purchasing behavior of customers. Teamviewer (Transport Energy Efficiency, Germany) released disappointing results that did not meet management's prior guidance and were also below expectations regarding customer retention and margins. The Fund exited the position during the period.

Asset allocation was a positive contributor to equity performance. Not owning Energy and Financials was a drag over the period, however offset by the effect from not owning Communication Services. Regionally, stock selection in Europe and North America detracted from performance

Recent Developments

During the six-month period, the portfolio sub-advisor continued to position the Fund with a structural overweight to credit sectors including corporate bonds and ABS, as dictated by NEI's investment mandate, which calls for higher yields in exchange for elevated levels of risk. During the last three months of 2021 the portfolio sub-advisor continued to add to the ABS portion of the Fund based on the view of continued consumer strength.

In the first quarter of 2022, the portfolio sub-advisor trimmed back some of the riskier high yield bonds as the current market environment of prolonged higher inflation and lower projections of economic growth pose increased risks to high yield securities. That said, overall the portfolio sub-advisor is comfortable with the current high yield exposure given fair valuation metrics and support from solid corporate earnings.

Inflation and Fed policy continue to be major drivers of the bond market. The Fed's recent moves have roiled the market and spurred a move to higher rates and a flatter yield curve. Additional rate hikes and balance sheet tightening are expected in the coming months.

The portfolio sub-advisor believes that rising inflationary pressures and the prospect of moderating economic growth in some geographies will lead investors to refocus attention on quality companies benefiting from pockets of secular growth. Many holdings in the Fund are showing more attractive valuation justified by solid underlying earnings growth.

Conviction in the drivers of environmental markets remain intact. In recent months, drivers have been bolstered by global policy measures, build-back-greener initiatives, planned industry and sector adaptation roadmaps, consumer behaviour, fast-moving technological advances and the ever-growing financial cost of climate change. European dependence on Russian gas has likewise reawakened energy security concerns, which should serve to further accelerate the net zero transition.

NEI Global Sustainable Balanced Fund

Valuations in several thematic areas for environmental markets remain elevated particularly when framed against a macroeconomic backdrop of inflation, slowing growth and supply chain bottlenecks. However, the earnings prospects for the Fund during the remainder of the year appear healthy, characterized by above-market growth in tandem with secular drivers. The portfolio sub-advisor is therefore focused on constructing a diversified and balanced Fund with exposure to a broad range of environmental sectors, end markets and business models. They remain focused on achieving a resilient Fund benefiting from demand beneficiaries of the sustainable transition including companies enabling the circular economy, tapping into rising digitalization trends, and increased energy efficiency and independence.

(1) Management expense ratio is based on total expenses (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, as well as withholding taxes) for the stated period and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

(2) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other Fund transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

(3) The portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's sub-advisor manages its investment holdings. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the period. The higher the portfolio turnover rate in a period, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of a Fund.

Management Fees

The Manager is responsible for the management, supervision and administration of the Fund. The Manager receives from the Fund management fees, before HST, calculated daily on the net asset value of the Fund at an annual rate shown below. The Fund does not pay management fees for Series I and O units. Series I and O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to NEI Investments.

The management fee covers the cost of investment advisory fees, sales, marketing, and distribution expenses of the Fund. In addition, the Manager may pay a trailer fee to dealers out of this management fee. The trailer fee is a percentage of the average daily value of the units of the Fund held by the dealer's clients. No trailer fees are paid in respect of any Series F and PF units of the Fund.

The following table shows the major services paid for out of management fees as a percentage of the management fee for all applicable series of the Fund:

	Management Fee (%)	Investment Advisory and Other Fees (%)	Trailer Fee (%)
Series A	1.70	42.84	57.16
Series F	0.70	100.00	N/A
Series P	1.50	33.33	66.67
Series PF	0.50	100.00	N/A

Past Performance

The performance information provided will not necessarily indicate how the Fund will perform in the future. The information shown assumes that distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the relevant series of the Fund. In addition, the information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution or other optional charges that would have reduced returns or performance.

Year-by-Year Returns

The following charts show the annual performance for each series of units of the Fund for each period shown and illustrate how the Fund's performance has varied from period to period with the exception of 2022, which shows the six-month return for the period ended March 31, 2022.
