Management Discussion of Performance

Results of Operations

The NEI Global High Yield Bond Fund's Series A units returned -4.2% for the six months ended March 31, 2022 compared with a return of -4.3% for the benchmark explained below.

Unlike the benchmark return, the Fund's returns are after the deduction of fees and expenses paid by the Fund. Performance differences between series of units are mainly attributable to management fees charged to each series. Refer to the Past Performance section for the details of returns by series.

The benchmark for this Fund is the Bloomberg Barclays US High Yield 2% Issuer Cap Index (C$ hedged).

The Fund's net asset value increased by 8.77% during the period, from $288,713,873 as at September 30, 2021 to $314,034,685 as at March 31, 2022. This change in net assets is attributed to net unitholder activity of $35,460,571 and -$10,139,759 to investment operations, including market appreciation (depreciation), income and expenses.

Factors That Have Affected Performance

During the fourth quarter of 2021, the market experienced a roller coaster. Most notably, the emergence of the Omicron variant and the volatility it created, as well as the subsequent normalization of those same concerns. Despite the variables that were on the minds of investors, December still delivered the strongest monthly return of the year for high yield after two back-to-back months of negative performance. As the year comes to an end, CCCs continue to stand out as the strongest performer during the entire year with B's and BB's following behind them. While positive returns were seen across all industries, the top performers were broadcasting, energy, and transportation. In contrast, the weakest performers were telecom, cable/satellite, and consumer products.

The first quarter of 2022 concluded as a tough time for high yield amidst a hawkish fed, tensions in Russia/Ukraine, higher rates, rising commodity prices and inflation concerns, just to name a few. Even though March was the third consecutive month of losses for high yield, both US and European high yield rank as the highest performing sectors of most major fixed income indices. The safest place this year has been single B's which have outperformed CCC's and BB's. In fact, 1Q22 is now the worst quarterly performance for BB's since 4Q08. The weakest sectors in 1Q were housing, retail, and food/beverage, all sectors that are more correlated to rising rates. In contrast, the strongest sectors were metals/mining and energy, which have outperformed due to rising commodity prices, partially as a result of the Russia/Ukraine conflict.

Security selection positively impacted returns due to the outperformance from overweights to Taseko Mines and Triumph Group, underweights to VEON Holdings, Diamond Sports Group, and Bausch Health, as well as the portfolio sub-advisor's positioning within the capital structures of Triumph Group and Bausch Health. This was somewhat offset by the underperformance from overweights to Pilgrim's Pride Corp, Park River Holdings Inc, and Centene Corp, underweights to PBF Holding Company and Transocean, as well as the portfolio sub-advisor's positioning within the capital structures of Pilgrim's Pride Corp and Centene Corp. Sector allocation outperformed due to underweights to communications and consumer non-cyclicals. However, this was somewhat offset due to an underweight to consumer cyclicals, and an overweight to banking.

Recent Developments

Over the last few months, the portfolio sub-advisor has been cautious on adding risk into the Fund. That proved to be the correct decision as the high yield market showed obvious signs of pressure this past month, causing underperformance in the lower rated issuers. This pressure came despite the fact that we just finished a third quarter earnings season that was substantially better than expectations. More importantly right now, for the most part, a majority of companies have been able to pass on higher costs and kept margins at very strong levels.

Clearly the market was caught off-guard by the Omicron variant, which caused significant spread widening at the end of the year.

However, most of the concerns receded by the end of year as we saw a return to more normal market conditions. The portfolio sub-advisor has no better crystal ball than anyone – they have to make the assumption that the countries will be able to control the spread of the variant and it will have very little impact on the actual fundamentals of a company. They believe that issuers fundamentals will continue to improve and will be stronger than pre-COVID-19 levels by the middle of 2022. The actual Moody's global 12-month trailing default rate has made a sharp decline with the current rate at 1.99% and their forecast sees rates rising slightly to 2.27% over the next year.

With regards to portfolio construction, as the portfolio sub-advisor has for the last few months, they have not found valuations cheap enough to aggressively reach for yield. They continue to want to invest in securities that provide additional upside in the event that the Omicron variant appears to be a minor event. They will continue to be shorter in duration as the Federal Reserve begins their tapering process and continue to see the best value in B-rated bonds. With higher interest rate concerns, they have a hard time believing that spread tightening in BB's can offset higher interest rates. CCC's have done amazingly well in 2021 and that trend may continue as we head into 2022, but will remain volatile as long as Omicron headlines persist. In terms of sectors, the portfolio sub-advisor continues to be overweight basic industries, capital goods and transportation. They continue to be underweight communications and technology, but they are selectively looking to reduce their underweight to technology.

(1) All per unit figures presented in 2022 are referenced to net assets determined in accordance with IFRS and are derived from the Fund's semi-annual financial statements for the period ended March 31, 2022.

(2) Net assets and distributions are based on the actual number of units outstanding at the relevant time. The increase/decrease from operations is based on the weighted average number of units outstanding over the financial period.

(4) Distributions (if any) that may have been made that included return of capital in excess of short term earnings were made to minimize disruption and provide stability to investors who have elected to take their distributions in the form of cash, and as disclosed in the Simplified Prospectus. These amounts are reviewed at each calendar year-end and management engages in discussions with the sub-advisor to determine the most applicable strategy on a go forward basis and will take any action(s) as needed for the long term stability of the Fund.

(1) Management expense ratio is based on total expenses (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, as well as withholding taxes) for the stated period and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

(2) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other Fund transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

(3) The portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's sub-advisor manages its investment holdings. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the period. The higher the portfolio turnover rate in a period, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of a Fund.

(4) Effective January 18, 2019 Series T has been discontinued and all assets have been merged into Series A.

Management Fees

The Manager is responsible for the management, supervision and administration of the Fund. The Manager receives from the Fund management fees, before HST, calculated daily on the net asset value of the Fund at an annual rate shown below. The Fund does not pay management fees for Series I and O units. Series I and O unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to NEI Investments.

The management fee covers the cost of investment advisory fees, sales, marketing, and distribution expenses of the Fund. In addition, the Manager may pay a trailer fee to dealers out of this management fee. The trailer fee is a percentage of the average daily value of the units of the Fund held by the dealer's clients. No trailer fees are paid in respect of any Series F and PF units of the Fund.

The following table shows the major services paid for out of management fees as a percentage of the management fee for all applicable series of the Fund:
