Management Discussion of Performance

Results of Operations

The NEI Global Equity Pool's Series I units returned 0.6% for the six months ended March 31, 2022 compared with a return of 0.8% for the benchmark explained below.

Unlike the benchmark return, the Fund's returns are after the deduction of fees and expenses paid by the Fund. Performance differences between series of units are mainly attributable to management fees charged to each series. Refer to the Past Performance section for the details of returns by series.

The benchmark for this Fund is the MSCI World NR Index (C$).

The Fund's net asset value increased by 12.14% during the period, from $256,723,140 as at September 30, 2021 to $287,880,849 as at March 31, 2022. This change in net assets is attributed to net unitholder activity of $29,738,862 and $1,418,847 to investment operations, including market appreciation (depreciation), income and expenses.

Factors That Have Affected Performance

Accommodative monetary policy continued to support an accelerating economic recovery, but—despite generally strong corporate earnings and economic data—equity markets experienced a dramatic increase in volatility later in the period.

During the period, the Fund rose in absolute terms, and outperformed the MSCI World. Security selection in healthcare contributed, while selection in materials detracted. An underweight to energy detracted, while an underweight to consumer discretionary contributed.

Few companies that have performed well included Equinor, AutoZone, UnitedHealth Group. Equinor outperformed after reporting net income ahead of consensus, driven by both higher prices and volumes, reaping the benefits of its legacy assets and investments. Management announced that it would distribute US$10 billion to shareholders by raising dividends and initiating a US$5 billion share buyback program. At the end of February, Equinor also announced that it would immediately begin exiting its joint ventures in Russia.

Auto parts retailer AutoZone contributed following strong earnings results and a favorable industry outlook. Sales in the do-it-for-me segment grew 29% to US$900 million, which marks the sixth consecutive quarter of double-digit commercial growth. Earnings per share also beat consensus, driven by significant operating expense leverage that more than offset continued gross margin compression.

UnitedHealth Group, a leading US health insurer, outperformed along with the overall managed-care industry. UnitedHealth reported solid results ahead of consensus. Owing to the strong results, UnitedHealth raised guidance, partially benefiting from a decline in the COVID-19 headwind.

Few companies that detracted included Apple, Partners Group and Deckers Outdoor. The Fund's underweight to Apple detracted. Shares were down slightly after reporting earnings, but then rallied to reach a record high. The stock was also boosted by investor optimism regarding potential future growth initiatives such as an Apple Car. The new iPhone 13 is experiencing stronger-than-expected demand in China and the US, despite supply-chain issues including semiconductor shortages and manufacturing headwinds in Southeast Asia from COVID-19 spikes in the region.

Partners Group, a leading global private markets firm, underperformed as the market rotated away from more expensive growth-orientated stocks. However, the company did give a strong assets under management update in January that shows a company in good health. Gross sales in the second half of the year were 30% ahead of consensus. Guidance for 2022 was also strong. The company should see a normalization of performance fees, which benefited from catching up on exit activities delayed from 2020.

Deckers Outdoor, the leading footwear brand known for its UGG and HOKA brands, fell after the company reported earnings in February showing continued supply-chain challenges. Management noted that prolonged transit times are the most material headwind to the business, and at year-end, 50% of inventory was in transit versus only 25% at the same time the year prior.

Recent Developments

During the six-month period, Fund changes during the quarter focused on addressing three key risks. First, the portfolio sub-advisor added to quality names with pricing power and consistent cash generation in the face of rising inflation and slowing growth. Second, the portfolio sub-advisor added to stability and commodities, with greater geopolitical tensions and risk aversion. Third, the portfolio sub-advisor increased companies with cheaper valuations, avoiding expensive hypergrowth names.

Equity markets rallied in the final weeks of the period, but the portfolio sub-advisor expects more volatility ahead. The portfolio sub-advisor's quality, stability and price approach is well positioned for the three key risks it sees in 2022. First, inflation has spiked, and growth was naturally slowing before Ukraine. Quality companies with strong, consistent cash flows are resilient. Second, geopolitical tensions amplified stagflation risks. Stability can mitigate risk against market downturns. Third, rising interest rates induce valuation risk. The portfolio sub-advisor focuses on price, avoids companies with heightened valuations.

While the conflict created many uncertainties, the portfolio sub-advisor believes the impact of persistent inflation may be the dominant influence for equity investors. Even if some war-related disruptions are resolved, countries and companies are seeking new ways to source essential inputs, from oil and gas to auto components, microchips and food ingredients. Even if inflation cools, the portfolio sub-advisor believes it's likely to remain higher than its been accustomed to for many years, as inflationary forces were already brewing at the beginning of 2022. The deflationary forces of globalization have been under pressure, while the pandemic led to widespread supply disruptions and central banks implemented historically loose monetary policies.

Central banks have a monumental task today. Managing inflation while maintaining growth will be very tricky. The traditional approach of raising interest rates to stifle demand may be less effective. New sources and supply chains need to be established. Since inflation currently is being driven by a supply shock, the challenges are very different than inflationary bouts in the recent past.

The Fund owns quality compounders with sustainable growth drivers that can withstand a tougher macroeconomic environment. The portfolio sub-advisor believes companies with higher-quality cash flows and balance sheets, and clear catalysts for recovery, are preferable to the cheapest names with inferior fundamentals. The Fund is exposed to inexpensive defensives, as the portfolio sub-advisor believes that expensive valuations for unprofitable growth companies are vulnerable in a rising-rate environment. The portfolio sub-advisor believes the accelerated digitization across payments, business interactions and consumer e-commerce, as well as the accelerated transition to the knowledge-based economy, will create opportunities in companies that provide information and proprietary data that are essential.

The portfolio sub-advisor believes that equity portfolios designed to smooth volatility are especially appealing in the current market environment. The portfolio sub-advisor continues to look for companies that offer a combination of quality and stability at attractive prices, the three core elements that underpin its investment philosophy in good and bad times. For long-term, outcome-oriented investors, the portfolio sub-advisor believes that companies with these features are best positioned to deliver strong returns through changing environments.

Ratios and Supplemental Data

Series	Period	Total Net Asset Value (000's of $)	Number of Units Outstanding (000's)	Management Expense Ratio (%) ⁽¹⁾	Management Expense Ratio before Waivers and Absorptions (%)	Trading Expense Ratio (%) ⁽²⁾	Portfolio Turnover Rate (%) ⁽³⁾	Net Asset Value per Unit ($)

	Sept. 2019	18,474.41	1,824.67	N/A	N/A	0.13	6.19	10.12

(1) Management expense ratio is based on total expenses (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, as well as withholding taxes) for the stated period and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

(2) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other Fund transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

(3) The portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's sub-advisor manages its investment holdings. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the period. The higher the portfolio turnover rate in a period, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of a Fund.

Management Fees

The Manager is responsible for the management, supervision and administration of the Fund. The Fund does not pay management fees for Series I. Series I unitholders pay a negotiated fee directly to NEI Investments.

Past Performance

The performance information provided will not necessarily indicate how the Fund will perform in the future. The information shown assumes that distributions made by the Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional units of the relevant series of the Fund. In addition, the information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution or other optional charges that would have reduced returns or performance.

Year-by-Year Returns

The following charts show the annual performance for each series of units of the Fund for each period shown and illustrate how the Fund's performance has varied from period to period with the exception of 2022, which shows the six-month return for the period ended March 31, 2022.
